And yet Russia's strangle hold is increasingly tightening nonetheless:

And with George Bush condemning the Russians and demanding they respect Georgia's territory (i.e GTFO), as seen here:

Backed by Englands PrimeMinister, here:

Ya'know, the same two Countries that went to the Midle East together and kicked ass, it seems that at least a cold war could erupt, if not a world war.

We love our oil interest, the Middle East conflict proves that, like hell we're going to let Georgia fall under the Russians control and secure all of the worlds oil resources.

I hope there is no global conflict, but it isn't out of the question.
