This is how I know you've never played TS.

They're called Subterranean dwellings. Based on the name one could surmise that they're houses that people live in underground, and what we can see is just the entrance. oops. forgot about those. i remember them now though. they still look like bunkers. why not use them for that purpose? Or at least have the subterranean dwellings as outposts...

P.S. It's just because I've played CnC Generals for SO long.. and they had the same buildings, but they were bunkers instead. sorry about the misunderstanding.
