
Subject: Re: Could not stop laughing

Posted by TheMouse on Tue, 29 Jul 2003 20:56:12 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

YanoTheDragon

what the fuck is it with you and your boycotting French-ness? i mean what kind of fucking morons are you?! the French already got the money from the store/distributor what you are doing is boycotting stores... honestly. if people added McDonald's to the list, would you fuckin boycott that to? good god... you anti French can be moronic jackasses... try thinking things through next time.... (by the way, nothing personal.)

I never take anything personal, that only leads to trouble, your post is junk to me, clean it up and maybe I'll respect you thoughts as I do for everyone else whether they agree w/ me or not.

Are you 10? Do you know how a boycott works? When you stop buying, French cheese for example, it will start to pile up in the store and the store owner will see that no one is buying this stuff and will order less then none, I would know this because my Aunt owns a grocery store. I don't eat from McDonald's, that stuff is trash in a wrapper. And it just not products, my Dad dumped ALL of his French stock. And yes God is good, don't bring him into this :rolleyes:

no i am not 10, and do know how a boycott works. but even if lots of people boycott these products that they have used for years without a problem, and they pile up in stores, and the stores don't purchase them anymore, what is the point? what have you accomplished? why do you so childishly hate the french over something so lame as them voting against going to war? get over it... the war is pretty much over anyway. besides, according to you people, all they do is surrender, so what good would they have done in the first place? and yes, i will "clean up" my original post...
