Ok, after watching that video I now feel informed enough to back up my new argument.

It doesn't matter. Both sides are wrong. That is my argument. You are wrong if you are against it and you are wrong if you are for it. There are simply not enough positives and negatives on either side to pull it in either direction. Plus, either if you circumcised or uncircumcised, you can still perform as you would always.

This is why this argument is pointless and anyone who supports a strong feeling about it either way should just stop. There are more important things in the world to worry about than some stranger kid losing a small bit of skin or not.

So yea, just to recap, I'm not for it but nor am I against it.
