
Subject: Re: McCain picks his vp.
Posted by JohnDoe on Wed, 03 Sep 2008 03:21:54 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

R315r4z0r wrote on Tue, 02 September 2008 20:20: Are parents wrong for doing it? No they aren't. However are they right for doing it? Still, no they aren't.

It isn't like they are cutting it off completely. It can still be used therefore the only thing that stands left over is if they prefer to have it on or off. That's it.

"Mutilating" is an interesting choice of word. Although it correctly describes the procedure, I think it is a bit too strong of a word for this. It is like saying you mutilate your hair when you get it cut or mutilate your fingernails. Sure both your fingernails and hair don't have nerve endings in them and can't feel pain, but it doesn't impact your life once they are removed. Which is what I'm trying to point out.

If you tend to prefer one over the other, that is perfectly fine. However if you are against one and not the other, that is different and I think such opinions should be avoided. It's like being against a certain hairstyle or clothing line or skin color. It doesn't have an impact on your functionality in life so it should not be an issue.

And as far as these "organizations" that are for or against it... they are a waste of money and I think they should be disbanded.

In case you haven't noticed, your fingernails and hair grow back...
