I personally think the outskirts of London are far worse than the City centre. The places are pretty nasty and the people are worse. I've never really had any problems in those parts and I have been there at some pretty weird times. Having said that when I was doing Photography at 1am on the South Bank there were a lot of people circling me and eyeing up my gear. Thankfully nothing happened (even if it did I was there at a really fucking stupid time for a week day). One thing I do really like is the London skyline but as previously mentioned it is REALLY full of cranes and looks pretty shit currently.
