Correct me if I'm wrong.

The number of Iraqi civilian deaths is in dispute; according to the Lancet in July 2006, an estimated 601,000 Iraqi civilians had been killed. That number was largely viewed as accurate by many news and even military sources, and that was two years ago.

So if the estimate was wrong, and 600,000 Iraqi civilians had been as of TODAY, that's still about 200 per American killed on 9/11.

RIP 9/11 victims
Ah, my bad. Wikipedia told me 151,000 in the graph on
