No you forgot that we don't get to own anything anymore. We only get to use it while the company who makes it still retains all their rights over it.

It's the same fucking thing as sharing music, games, movies...

How about I go buy a chair from a furniture store and I put it at my kitchen table. I'm using it for a while and the light burns out in the ceiling fan. I slide the chair over, get up onto it, start unscrewing the bulb and the fucking FBI raids my house. The furniture makers say I'm not using the chair as they intended. I am only capable of sitting on it, not standing on it.

That is fucking shit.

So are most intellectual property laws now a days.
