

---

Subject: Re: My Last Thread...

Posted by StealthEye on Tue, 16 Sep 2008 20:35:06 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I totally agree with that way of posting news. Better have infrequent useful news posts than frequent uninteresting ones. It's also less time consuming, because you don't have to make a news post about every little thing that changes and it's less time consuming for people too keep up with the mods' progress filtering out the important parts about the progress from the rest.

Quote:Well, if you only post news once a month, people will start to think that you're barely even doing anything. It's a good idea to keep the community active with news. It's better if people think you do nothing and you actually do a lot than the other way around: wasting a lot of time on writing news and slowing down progress in the process.

---