i just saw that website, and found it interesting (especially the western europe map) because this is one of the most impossible ideas ever, and thought only an idiot would try to act on such an idea on the internet, and wondered how would the community react to the existance of such a website.

can you blame me for sharing a website with the other members of the community?

maybe the time has come for you to watch your words and think twice before posting (not limited to this topic). because your aggression is very annoying.
