Hey, bet you could never have guessed that from my forum login name. In my opinion players who use loads of different names are probably trying to hide something, like the fact they are a known cheater or someone who was banned from a server for some other reason. Why would you even NEED more than one login name, it's not as if you can play against yourself...

I can think of one reason. If a freind wants to play it on your computer. However, that only constitutes having 2 names.

Also, if you care about what online gamers think of your skills (lol) and you ever want to mess around in a match without actually trying then a person might switch names.
