
Subject: Re: Now that Tiberium is canceled...
Posted by u6795 on Thu, 09 Oct 2008 01:04:25 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

KIRBY-098 wrote on Wed, 08 October 2008 21:02I will tell you this:

When we were developing D6, it was stupidly easy to connect the two universes with a rich plot and it all made sense. To me, there is no separation of the two.

The allies won RA1 and those events led into the rest of events as they unfolded, there was no RA2.

Firestorm was the perfect lead in to what should have been an entirely enrapturing plot for C&C Twilight.

Everything was there for the next saga, and it all went in the dustbin because they couldn't find a decent writer and didn't let Kucan direct.

I am so glad to be writing again for Ren X. I get to write this out the way the fans know it should be done, not the way that panders to the consumer masses who have a three second attention span and low IQs.

I completely agree. Looking forward to reading your RenX shit, judging by your two stories that I've read it's going to be awesome.
