

---

Subject: Re: Red Alert 3 buying survey
Posted by Ethenal on Thu, 09 Oct 2008 23:40:59 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Ryu wrote on Thu, 09 October 2008 16:07How about you buy the game, pirate the ISO, and use your legit serial?

Because in the end you won't seem like a fucking moron, right?

While I may disagree with DRM and because I'm not a consumer whore, doesn't mean I can't think logically.

EA need to keep a business running so obviously they're going to try and protect their product, even if their attempts are weak, however, why should you steal their product?

If you like the game, buy it, get the serial, download the cracked version with no DRM and use your legit serial and happy fun times, if you don't like the game or EA yet still pirate it, you are a fucking moron because you are still supporting EA one way or another.

That's what I do with C&C 3 actually. Instead of taking forever to start up with all that DRM shit in place, it loads much much faster.

But seriously, EA is just asking to lose customers with this move.

---