thanks goz, I Have a friend who also helps me out, He has to master degrees and he answers lot of these questions as well but he takes days to write back thru e-mail lol. Another question is

My internet used to be 6 mb up 754 or something kb down.....Now that's its 10 mp up and 1 mp down you think That by any chance the network cable going from my modem to my router is an old one (like a cat 4 by any chance?) My router gets over heated and disconnects and slows down internet speeds after researching and posting on other forums everyone says its old get a new better one, Which I am Im just saying think it would be wise to by a few extra cat 5e network cables just in case?
