Well, since we are on the subject of it, GTAIV sorta fixes that. That's not to say they've gotten rid of chase missions, however the guys you are chasing do crash... a lot. It's actually one of the ways to stop them, lure them into a spot they can't get through, like a line of cars on a highway.

I actually played a mission where the guy crashed into an oil tanker and won the mission for me :V.

Anyway, I play GTA games until I beat the game. Then play for about an hour or so a week there after.

Now, Wii fit is fun because of the work outs and stuff it has built into it, but it also has a bunch of skill games with the balance board that I just can't seem to get the hang of >.<
