BAH! That's the Joker!

Also, this thread doesn't make sense to me... This thread is about showing off your avatars by posting them in the thread.

However, the entire point of an avatar is to be viewed by other people constantly, because they are attached to your name and information when you post...

So what's the point of me posting my avatar in this post when you can just look right up next to my name and see it? You can even right click on it and save it if you wanted to...
