When I was a little guy I was pretty happy to go to Church and I believed in God, but as I got older, from the ages of 16-17, I went completely agnostic. Through that time, I didn't really believe in any God, but I kept an open mind about the issue. Especially the Greeks. I often had wondered what would make these people believe in the Greek Gods. And to some extent I believe they did have valid reason for believing so, whether it may be wrong or not. As my beliefs currently stand, they are a result of many events that have happened over the course of last year or so. To me, I think a lot of it all depends on personal experiences.
