well he's to liberal for me and thats why I didnt vote for him. i bet there are a lot who voted for him simply on skin color alone. So maybe our next prez can be green and we can all vote for them cause maybe all we needed was a different color in the white house to make things better.

i still have not seen one person say why they voted for Obama other than general talking points and skin color p.s. this also goes for you all who didn't vote for him because of his skin color. those who voted for or against him strictly on skin color should have their rights removed for voting.
