This, specially when ISPs are starting to tinker with bandwidth caps (at least here in the US).

Normally I don't mind ads as long as they're not a splash page (looking at you, GameSpy network), not one of those audio "Congratulations, you've just won fifty iPods!" annoyances, are incredibly desperate for attention, or crafty pop-up/pop-under ads. Wait, did I just describe the majority of ads? Crap.
