I can honestly say I agree. The nation has become dependent on the federal government. I love the quote from the movie "V" for Vendetta: Governments should fear their people, not the other way around.

While deflation can lead to economic turmoil, right now deflation would probably do the dollar some good. I'm adamantly opposed to these bailouts that have transpired, mostly because we're (the taxpayers) are handing out money the United States doesn't have, and we may never see again. Let poorly run corporations die, instead of rewarding them for incompetence.

When anything from a household to a country lives outside its means, then debt can begin to control everything you have.

I'm not 100% positive marriage stemmed from religion. I just assumed it. Looking back, what I said was pretty parochial.
