Yes, I agree with you on the whole idea that it's somehow "absurd" to believe in God, but you can believe that matter happened to exist prior to the Big Bang. You can believe in one or the other just fine, but to then suddenly laugh at the other's belief on the issue is hypocritical in a sense.

Though, I find your assumption that atheism is worshiping science to be utterly stupefying. If I use math to figure out my accounting, am I suddenly worshiping math? Just because you use a proven method to figure out answers doesn't mean anyone's worshiping the method. It's just a tried and true method. As for science, it answers A LOT of questions.

Nobody's saying that because science can't prove it that it's disproven. You can't use science to disprove something that isn't physical. I'm sure Spooky will completely agree with me on that. The only thing we can say is that it's NOT proven, and it's nothing that you can even deny. Otherwise, I'm sure you would have given us physical evidence, by now, to support that God does, in fact, exist.

One last thing, just because you make stupid remarks that cause us to refute them doesn't mean that we hate Christians and are out to destroy them. Not at all. In fact, I respect my family's faith and their beliefs. I have no intention to destroy their or anyone else's beliefs. However, I am trying to destroy blatant ignorant on the part of self-righteous Christians.

Edit: Yes, I realize you never said "destroy". You can replace it with whatever you like. "Bash", "disprove", "insult", etc... I don't care. You get my fucking point.

you said i never responded so i will. I never said I thought it was absurd I believe in God so don't twist my words around and stick to what was posted.

Excuse me the last 4 pages of this entire thread is you all laughing at Christians for what they believe, but you find it wrong for me to laugh at your wacked ideas that we all came from nothing.

I will have to agree with you on this. Religion is man made that's why there are billions of them all thinking they got it right. Jesus didn't change a person's heart by preaching them to death he first acted on their need then they wanted to know who he was. To many Christians think if you smack someone upside the head enough with the bible they will get it but in fact it only gives them a headache.

All I was trying to say with my post is how funny it is that those who discredit their being a God also in the same breathe wants us to swallow the fact that all this came from nothing and to believe in Evolution which is still just a theory.
