Darkknightyou said i never responded so i will. I never said I thought it was absurd I believe in God so don't twist my words around and stick to what was posted.

What?! Are you high? When did I ever say or imply that?

DarkknightExcuse me the last 4 pages of this entire thread is you all laughing at Christians for what they believe, but you find it wrong for me to laugh at your wacked ideas that we all came from nothing.

When did I say we all came from nothing? When did I ever imply that I was an atheist? Most people that have been paying attention should know by now that I am a THEIST. I believe in Intelligent Design, and I believe it was a god that set everything in motion. However, I don't believe religion to be true, especially since there can't just be "one, true" religion. You cannot honestly tell me that EVERYBODY else besides the Jews and the Christians got it wrong and are suffering eternal damnation.

DarkknightI will have to agree with you on this. Religion is man made that's why their are billions of them all thinking they got it right. Jesus didn't change a persons heart by preaching them to death he first acted on their need then they wanted to know who he was. To many Christians think if you smack someone upside the head enough with the bible they will get it but in fact it only gives them a headache.

All I was trying to say with my post is how funny it is that those who discredit their being a God also in the same breathe wants us to swallow the fact that all this came from nothing and to believe in Evolution which is still just a theory.

You do have to realize that scientific "theory" isn't the type of theory you're talking about, right?

Edit: Spoony, there is more than just one type of "theory". Creationism is a theory. It's just not a scientific theory.
