No, we need no requirement for any language. Ever.

Just because most people happen to speak English, doesn't mean that it that everyone has to. It's a stupid idea that is nothing but a waste of money and time when it comes to actually teaching it to others.

Not only that, it is pointless because not everyone will learn it anyway.

For example, you will still get illegal aliens. And they are the main people targeted for this. If they are illegals, they wont bother to attend a language class, therefore defeating the entire purpose of the classes.

Not to mention, speaking what ever language you want is another division of freedom of expression and freedom of speech. If I spoke Spanish, I should have every right to chose never to learn English, regardless of how hard I make it for myself and other people. It's my right to do so.

There should be absolutely no language requirements to live in this country. EVER.
