I wish you good luck but I honestly doubt you'll last long. We have the mod forum here which is sufficient for most stuff. If wanted, I could ask Crimson to make a "mod release forum", where only released things could be posted.

I don't see what's special about your forums, BTW. It's a standard skin on a standard free forum package on a non dedicated domain name :S.

It would probably do everyone much good to keep the community united at one place and i suggest that place would be right here, where it has been for all these years.
