Wait, so you Googled the problem and found the solution, but you STILL come here for help?

If your issue is that you have too many files in the root folder, try organizing the music in folders instead. I NEVER have any issues with filling my 2GB SD Micro cards with my music, and I organize my music by album, "Artist - Album Title".

If the cards have a forced limit on them, you're not going to be able to get around it. You'll just have to make do. Organization shouldn't be the end of the world. Hell, it makes it a fuckload easier to remove songs you DON'T want because you don't have to search for them as much.
