You might believe in god and heaven etc.. and I dont believe in it at all. Now you can say god is awesome and he loves everyone and all that nonsense. Now im not gonna call you an idiot for believing in it because thats your opinion. But you or anyone else cant get upset if I say well gods fake and its just a bunch of nonsense.

I get what your saying to, I dont know if saying good exist and god is good somehow offends the ones who dont believe it if it does I never once say anything about god, even tho i believe I keep my mouth shut about it, you know.

Right but I was just using that as an example since you mentioned about people bashing on god. I have my own beliefs in everything and you cannot get annoyed/upset because my opinion which I am entitled to is different from yours.

By saying no actually this is how <insert whatever here> is/works/should be... doesn't mean I am being disrespectful to others it just means that I dont agree with you. People need to learn not to take offence because someone else has a different opinion about something.

If someone says God doesn't exist and its all a tale etc... You should say while I respect your opinion I do not agree with it, that way noone gets offended and we all get on with whatever else we're doing.
