I am not getting it for £35-40. I'll wait until it goes to the bargain bucket for about £10.

I don't think Generals should have had the C&C logo (oh no, flamebait) on it. The whole style of gameplay was different: no turtling (effective turtling, anyway) forcing a fast build and rush style, which was not the ONLY option during earlier C&C's, and I like good story campaigns. (Generals not having one...)

That latter point is also why I am quite dissapointed with Sins Of A Solar Empire, as that has loads of backstory references in the manual (which I read as it installed) but then no campaign!
