The problem with that though, is that next week is when we GET BACK FROM SPRING BREAK!

I don't get how they expect us to do good on a 3 hour long exam (which isn't just that, but we have to take it 3 hours everyday for 4 or 5 days), right after getting back from a long week of sleeping in and forgetting everything we learned.

You realise the whole point of a break is to give you time to revise and study on your own, right? I know very few students actually USE it for that, but that's your own fault if you don't use the time as it was intended to be used.
