Actually after looking at the Demo it looks like you can rent a game for 5 days, or purchase it in full (digital copy).

I also forgot to think about another method of streaming multiplayer games, will they be hosting these large games or will they route game hosting for the players to host on their own connection like most multiplayer games? If so, I guess On Live might be successful....did not think about this scenario, as it probably seems the most realistic. Interested in seeing how the multiplayer games will work. I hope they don't try to host them...
