well, my neighbor is an AMD junky. he says no AMD processor has ever been known to burn out.
plus my comp makes almost no nois. the only noise is from my 7 fans (1 prosessor, 1 back, 1 side 4 front for harddrives, this is excluding the powersupplys fan) (the reason i have so manny is my case was desighned for server use) my prosessor makes no more noise than my dads p4.
comparatively think about this: why use a heatsink for nois reduction? wouldnt that be heavyer/more expensive than some nois reducing material? think about it. u can get a p4 and have no room 4 neting else, or get an AMD and have lots of room.
