I also forgot to think about another method of streaming multiplayer games, will they be hosting these large games or will they route game hosting for the players to host on their own connection like most multiplayer games? If so, I guess On Live might be successful....did not think about this scenario, as it probably seems the most realistic. Interested in seeing how the multiplayer games will work. I hope they don't try to host them...

Depends. If it's a xbox-live kind of setup they would be hosting the small 4v4 or whatever games. If it's a PC setup then it would be people paying for server and hosting an FDS.
