Renegade uses your computers name as a player name by default when you play a LAN game. So, if he has a Dell computer, its name would obviously be Dell by default. Therefore if he goes to set up a LAN match and doesn't bother to change his name, the name 'Dell' would be used because it is his computers name.

What does that mean? It means that the name "Dell" isn't the persons actual in game name. If they were to join a multiplayer match, their name would be the name they made themselves, not their computers default name.

That was already said 2-3 pages ago.
