why you say japanese crazy?

no i meant their code of bushido, never backing down, could've caused a lot of death. that's all i meant.

it japan culture you can't judge them

Except their culture at the time lead to millions of deaths that could have been easily averted.

You say that after the fact. The turning point in the war was the shock factor from the atomic bomb. There were rumours of it but it had never been used. Japan was in a VERY strong position in the war. Think about it. They're on an island on the other side of the pacific ocean. It was really hard for the US to attack them. It was nearly impossible to take over any land.

If the bomb wasn't created than they would have had almost nothing to fear. Not to mention Germany was creating a bomb even larger then the atomic bomb. Japan's don't back done attitude put them in power. They made them an army to fear.

DAUGHTER DIVER wrote on Sun, 03 May 2009 12:07 it not bushido that make japan don't want to surrender to america they want to fight because they hate america very much
it very long story

Thats a new one to me. Times must have changed a lot because that definately wasn't the attitude when I was there.
