Chrome is great on my Netbook, because it tends to handle Flash better than IE, because of my limited horsepower.

That said, the deal people make out of browsers is borderline hysterical because they're just dumb programs. What's next? People raging about the benefits of Notepad, versus its competitors? Sheesh.