
Subject: Time Travel and other stuff.

Posted by PsY on Wed, 13 Aug 2003 06:32:55 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

About wormholes, they are not always there. Sometimes they are, sometimes they are not. They follow a schedual, but i dont see how anyone could predict them.

If anyone could travel forward in time, they would ahve won the powerball atleast 5 times in a row. But then everyone would think its rigged, because you have a better chance of being struck by lighting TWICE in one lifetime than to win the powerball, winning 5 times would be phishy. So wed know instantly if that was the case.

Traveling back in time...

Taxines or whoever you are, Ive been reading your posts, you osund liek you know what your talking about. bows down. Am I right on tihs...isnt there soemhow (excuse the lack of knowledge here, im tired and falling asleed) some way through speed or something, that your mollocules (sp?) move so fast, that you can not be seen by any naked eye, or anything for that matter? Maybe, just maybe, traveling back in time requires moving at a speed we now find super human and impossible for even the fastest of all aircraft to move at, to do? Maybe you need to move so amazingly fast to go back in time, that you can not be seen by anyone/anything? Just a thought. Ive never read anytihng on the matter, just all personal thoughts.

But thats my theory as to why we can not see the "tourists" as I think its fun to call them, from the future, if they do exist. I have not taken a look at the time branch theory, as Im too tired to fully understand it.

Well. I certainly am interested in this now. I think Ill read up on it. Well now I have an idea for a science report for skool lol.

mmm...time for sleep...brain needs it now.
