I have about 4 years old computer with two partitions.
One is C - 26.6GB and D 26.9GB.

Both partitions are in Fat32, but I was thinking about converting the C (system) partition to NTFS.

I red on the NTFS website that NTFS performance is worse on small volumes, and better on large volumes. Now if I could only find out what they mean by "small" volumes. To me 26GB seems petty small so I guess I probably won't get any benefits.
But I just wanted to hear peoples opinions.
