

---

Subject: Re: Any thoughts on the Iranian election protests?

Posted by ErroR on Wed, 24 Jun 2009 09:23:51 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Starbuck wrote on Wed, 24 June 2009 07:21 Extremely disturbing...we see a free, moderate and liberal young generation seeking to break out of the rule of the warmongering control freak Islamists still stuck in the stone age.

Just saw the video of of people just getting shot and that woman known as Neda...I frankly cannot bring myself to eat anything after seeing her die like that...I am shocked and horrified.

It's very sad but it seems that the thugs will win this one. The Mousavi dude that ran against Ahmadinejad is, according to garbled reports, is basically under house arrest. Seems the protesters are leaderless now and are choosing to stay in their homes. this sounds AWFULLY familiar to what was in my country on 7th April. It actually sounds the same.

---