Yeah, there are some people who post too much pointless topics. For example some asked the other day if C&C Reborn had a website. If you go to google or another search engine and type in "C&C Reborn" guess what it comes up with. Same with searching for "Renegade Tutorials" you get the information that you get here most of the time and if you don't get what your looking for then post a topic. No offence to people who really do need help or know something but use common sense first and have a look for yourself.
