I think what you're asking is something to look for in speakers that distinguishes it will not have interference from your cell phone?

You need shielded speakers. Generally they wont announce this on the box, but a good brand like labtec, logitech, creative, and high end expensive models will be shielded and shouldn't be a problem. I'd say you're looking at around 50-80 dollars?

what ever the cheapest set that will still not do it im cool, but i love logitech shit so i might go get one of theres
