Just noticed this.

Well renhelp.com was meant to be under our control but after we got it to point to our name servers and everything was working like it should, he changed it back to his nameservers.

Oblivion165, never told me why, he never replied to my message on why he changed it all back and as such we had problems with images not working since they was still pointing to renhelp.com and not ours.

Now renhelp.net is gone again, the images have stopped working again, we should be able to fix that if I can get someone or myself to find the time to relink the images.

Alex, one of my staff did add a lot of the missing tutorials but they was set to hidden mode because we needed something done to them, since I saw this topic, I have made them visual for everyone to see.

I haven't forgot the site, but forgive me, real life stuff is stealing my time right now.
