Crimson wrote on Mon, 17 August 2009 17:26That's a pretty thin argument. I never said I "decide" who gets what hostname. Jelly decides since he owns all the top ones except the one I use for the main n00bstories server and any others he has given away permanently that I'm not aware of.

Crimson wrote on Mon, 17 August 2009 17:26As far as 'deserving', that's more of a general community feeling.

Funny, as I have heard that your Marathon server back in the day didnt quite work out and was kind of empty, so it started being used for Comm wars and was passworded. I actually think that server was ran on my box.

With that in mind, the N00bstories Marathon server being empty a lot more then the Exodus (Faildus, sorry) server, do you still think you deserve that nickname? Try filling your AOW server first.

In truth, a very small percentage of the players stole my server nickname for my marathon server and put their own anti-NS server up.

Anti-NS? The way I see it, people left your community, then started their own, seperate community.

You gave no comment on this comment. Even though it was not entirely required, as it was not a question, I would still like to see if you would like to comment on my statement. If not, then I entirely understand, being the good guy I am.

Please. When a server is created that duplicates our settings to the letter and all efforts are to copy all the features that we have on our custom bots, it's an anti-NS server.

As most of our moderators and people merged from your community, I thought I'd help them a hand and fulfill some requests they had, which seemed like they were also available at NS. I hardly played at NS, so I wouldn't know exactly what is/was ran on there

I'm sorry that it seems to you like we are an Anti-NS server, though we don't really advertise anywhere that we are so. We're a relatively new community with lots of people who moved over from yours.

Crimson wrote on Mon, 17 August 2009 17:26You spam your users with your fictional accounts

Elaborate, what fictional accounts, proof.

Crimson wrote on Mon, 17 August 2009 17:26of why you decided to leave and thread after thread is created for "why u choosed faildus over NS".

One thread. If Loki (ProJakson) , a normal, real, not fictional at all, forum user, decides to name his thread like that, then what do you suggest us to do, being a nazi and edit/remove the thread? If he is close-minded to only see us as anti-ns, then so be it. Some people commented that we shouldn't look at NS only, but look at all servers out there.

Crimson wrote on Mon, 17 August 2009 17:26I don't know why you deny this. A few months later, you're trying to go your own direction because you finally realized that you can't build a community based on hate.

2 months. We have had the plan to invest, if I may say so, in other games from the start, as that SEEMED to be one of the reasons that made some people split, eh, wrong word, sorry.

For the record, I joined Exodus later, I wasn't a part of the people who split, oh no wait, sabotaged your server at first.

Crimson wrote on Mon, 17 August 2009 17:26Quote:Prulez wrote on Mon, 17 August 2009 12:47Also.. your server nickname? Did you even use it back then? When a new community was formed on that nickname (Exodus, or should I say faildus/exofail because you like filtering it to that, really good job on deleting that poll btw) you instantly wanted to put up a marathon server on that nickname, probably just to stop us.

Thanks for answering this question, it is highly appreciated. Comparing Renegade hostnames to real world restaurant chains made me laugh, thanks for sharing that.

I'm glad you found it amusing. However, that wasn't my intent. With the limited number of players still available, people are a rare and valued asset, at least as far as running a Renegade server is concerned. Businesses pick locations to try and make the most money, though businesses all have their own ways of making money. High host names are far and above the best way to attract the most amount of players in this particular game.

Thanks for sharing that common Reneknowledge, I wasn't able to figure that out myself, thanks!

Crimson wrote on Mon, 17 August 2009 17:26I'm not sure how many of you guys have taken your SATs or learned analogies yet

Sorry, I follow the Dutch school system, so I didn't take them, I'm very sorry, does this make me a bad person?

Crimson wrote on Mon, 17 August 2009 17:26And once again, having one high nickname doesn't make it OK to steal the other one. If people used that logic, it would be OK to steal money because people have more in the bank, or OK to kill a baby if the parents have another one. I do not subscribe to such failures of logic.

If 2 Jelly admins (As stated in a few posts above) confirm to us that this hostname is OK to be used by us, then why shouldn't we?

Oh yeah, also, we deserve it more, as I said a bit before and our community thinks we deserve it anyways, as deserving is just a community feeling.
