

---

Subject: Re: off topic

Posted by Goztow on Tue, 18 Aug 2009 10:58:35 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

TBH, what do you expect then? You're a group of people that split from NS because you disagreed with how they acted, and while doing this you probably took a certain number of their regular members with them. What do you expect them to do? Say: "hey guys, good luck, tell us when you need some help!" Moreover what you did with the hostname may have been done technically correctly (as in: you went to Jelly and got it), but it seems to me all but politically correct.

Then afterwards you come on this forum, which is a place for the community but owned and financed by Crimson to spit venom about NS by posting information from private subforums. It seems your idea was to either make NS look bad or try to convince more of their members to join your community.

And then you seem to be surprised that NS isn't happy about you and "will try to sabotage you where possible"? It seems like a very normal reaction to me and maybe something you should have thought of a few months ago instead of complaining about it now. All actions have consequences that you need to foresee. Noone is ever possible to foresee all consequences, but these ones were kind of evident, no?

That being said, I don't want to take any position on the actual "who was right / wrong" discussion, because I don't care. But when I read things as stupid as the post before, then I feel I need to react.

---