It doesn't matter who. This person was warned repeatedly to stop doing something and refused, so I banned him for 30 days. He whined to EA about it and EA asked me to unban him. I explained why the ban was placed and politely refused. After the ban time was up, gradually this person and I got past our differences and get along fine. So, I see no reason to drag his name through the mud. The point was simply that grant89uk actually thinks that EA has ANY say whatsoever in how I choose to run these forums when it could not be farther from the truth.
