He wants to come back and we welcomed him with open arms.

It's a start, now how about having real dialogue between both communities (and just just focusing on getting individuals to switch)? Plus isn't a02 under your control?

We tried. In fact we had many of them convinced that they overreacted and probably didn't need to do what they did but they didn't want to just throw away all the time they invested in setting up their forums and server.

And who was this that you convinced?

I'm not going to drag their names through the mud, but most of them are the ones who haven't been posting here from your admin staff. Some of the moderators had wanted to be admins and they saw an opportunity to get more power and took it.
