To pin the blame on any one president is short sighted in my opinion.

Bill Clinton was elected to reduce the deficit and cut the size of government. Intelligence was not a priority at the time and was cut.

George Bush was just coming off the American spy plane landing in China mess when the attacks occurred.

It was never conceived that someone or an organization would go to such extremes to attack the USA.

We got caught with our pants down and it hurt.

The signs were there but missed, as for the theories, well, I personally don't believe them, but someone will always try to sell a bill of goods if it meets their agenda.
