It's quite simple, when a community gets eliminated twice, they're completely gone. The first time they get eliminated, they're moved to the lower bracket, with everyone else that lost their match, and they play against each other. Eventually, the winner of the main bracket plays against the 'winner' of the lower (losers) bracket.

If the team in the main bracket loses that match, it will be their first loss, just like the 'winner' of the lower bracket. In this case, there will be another match between these two to determine the winner of the tournament.

Basically, if you never lose, you go in a straight line and if you lose once, you have to make your up again without ever losing a match.

Lol yes, I know, I was being sarcastic because you all basically repeated what eachother said three times. <3
