Oh jesus, nevermind lol, here we go again...

EDIT: Well I wasn't going to respond, but here goes...

Crimson wrote on Wed, 23 September 2009 06:15They have already admitted to stealing my player IP database on their way out the door as well. Want me to let them spread that too? Okay, you can shove that one up your ass.

I was the one that did that, not Exodus, just me, and I refuse to let you cast the blame on anyone but me. I already apologized for it and did infact delete it as I said. I of course didn't expect you to accept my apology, nor believe that I did truly delete the database, because that'd be surrendering some of your ammunition. But I no longer have it, regardless of what you think.

I'd be glad to show you our currently broken IPbot (written in mIRC using hash tables, which is definitely not the same as MySQL) if you really think Exodus has your IP database. I already acknowledged that dumping that database was wrong, regardless of my intentions, and sincerely apologized for it (I highly doubt you don't have that post saved in your little archive). It's fine if you didn't accept it, but you're not going to use that to drag Exodus' name through the mud any more than you have. I have no problem with you attempting to take shots at ME for that, but I won't let you do that to Exodus, because it had nothing to do with them.
