The poll already happened and the fact many of the people posting here now don't remember it, proves that polls are never really representative.

The poll ended in a perfect 50/50 with a high amount of votes and also a sudden inflow of new people who never made a single post, following the posts on some community's forums to come and register here to vote con points fix, without even arguing why.

That's how representative polls are on renegade forums...
