it seems retarded to call it a 10v10 tournament when no one actually tries to get 10 players on we try to figure out who can make it and who can't and adjust accordingly, and when the game comes and 12 of the signed up players are on teamspeak ready to go and the other team has 4 though they said they would, unexpected things can happen in real life, nobody gives a shit about this tournament at that point.

there might be more to it than that
