Lol, i also have my work webfilter describe Ren-X as pornography. It also said my attempt to access that website had been logged!! Security hasnt come to take we away yet!!   Ha ha.

Try an ssl enabled proxy like http://www.libertybell.biz/ - or just google "ssl proxy" and pick one. These add a little extra value than the standard proxy websites as they remove any comments from the site header which will allow the filter to identify its content.

My company uses Webroot SSAS which blocks almost everything - literally 90% of the web is blocked. Plus the fact they refuse to update from Win2000 and im stuck with basic IE6 - bah, i digress. Even these forums are banned because its described as "gaming" and/or "message board". But i can beat that with the ssl filter. Although, Jelly-Server.com isnt banned which is almost identical to this site - so i dont get at all!

It works with Ren-X anyway.
